MEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent. NEW YORK, Oct. 8.

Those Loquacious Ladies. I refer to the ladies in East Twenty-third street. They have become more loquacious than ever during the last few days. Mrs. Wilbour has been reading an essay on "The Ballot as a Part of Woman's Education," whereupon Mrs. Norton, who burns to make herself notorious, presented resolutions calling upon all the women in the State who favor equal suffrage to appoint inspectors of elections, open their polls, cast their ballots, and make their returns in the usual form. A further feature in Mrs. Norton's resolution was that if, after the women had conformed to the requirements of the law, the returns should be rejected, they should then appeal to the Supreme Court. Mrs. Wilbour greatly favored these sprightly resolutions, although she is the last woman in the world upon whom, judging from appearances, one would dream of bestowing the epithet "strongminded." She is meek-looking and weak-looking, with gentle manners and the general appearance of an interesting invalid making a great effort for a great occasion. How, with her physique, she manages to transact her share of the loquacity, I am unable to comprehend. Mrs. Stanton, however, who opposed the resolutions with all the vigor of her inherent good sense, aided by the eloquence of her noble presence, is one of those women who can conduct themselves impressively in any situation. From the silver of her hair to the silver of her voice, the gold of her spectacles to that of her speeches, she is a dear, good, sensible old lady, with one crotchet-woman's suffrage-which is quite pardonable. When she ceases to be president, God help the Woman's Suffrage Association! Meanwhile I plty the fathers and brothers of these loquacions ladies. I fancy I see them going around with pins supplying the place of shirt buttons, and with toeless and heel-less stockings. It may be that these feminine pursuers of the right to vote do sew all the tears at home before proceeding to sow their wild oats abroad. It is possible that there are no masculine lamentations over fraved bosoms and ripped inexpressibles. It is within the reach of imagination that the Sorosisite does not wring her husband's fleshly bosom, and that the washer-woman is permitted to punctually wring his linen one, that the cook is kept in her place, and that the housemaid takes no liberties-but these things are hardly likely, or the ladies of the Sorosis and the Woman's Suffrage Association could scarcely find time for so much unmitigated gab.

The Murdered Chinese. Yesterday afternoon, as I walked along Centre street, opposite the Tombs, I saw three hearses drawn up before a tenement house there. They were surrounded by a large crowd, and contained the bodies of the three Chinese victims who were lately murdered there. The sensation being a legitimate one, and the number of victims larger than usual, the sympathy of the beholders was more ruffian-like than upon a common occasion, and the help of the police was

Miss Bateman. That Miss Kate Bateman has done pecuniarily well during her engagement at Booth's will be recognized when it is stated that for her last week's services she received four thousand dollars. Her audiences have been very large, and there has been no falling off in the appreciation that raised her to such eminence years ago. Next Monday evening week she is to appear in Mary Warner, which it will be remembered was written expressly for her by Tom Taylor. Her engage ment extends over some weeks yet, unless a new arrangement is entered into. I, for one, think her acting has improved since her marriage. It is warmer. The colors are richer and the tints more delicately shaded. Years have brought not only the philosophic mind. but the loving heart. Perhaps it is inevitable that Mrs. Crone. the wife, should be a better artiste than Miss Bateman, the maiden. Ferry Boat Romance. Near midnight on Wednesday evening, I found myself on Fulton street, not very far from the ferry, when a good looking girl of twenty swept hurriedly by me, with both hands raised to her temples, and exclaiming in an agonized voice, "Don't, Charley! Leave me!" She was rapidly pursued by a young man of about her own age, who was the very picture of a gentlemanly ruttian, and who carried a velvet cloak which evidently belonged to the young woman. They swept by me down to the ferry, a crowd following them, and I following the crowd. The boat was just in, but the girl must have made a furious dash amongst the crowd, for the next moment a splash was heard, a loud scream, and confused exclamations of "She's thrown herself in!" She had thrown herself in, but by the time I got there had been fished out, and conveyed into the ladies' cabin, where she sat shivering-the centre of a curious crowd. The young man who had followed her was leaning over her with an embarrassed air, evidently endeavoring to console her, and cherishing one of her cold hands in his. The other was still raised to her temple, as though she suffered pain there. In this plight the misguided young couple reached New York, and whatever their story might be, none of it became known, for a eab was called. "Charley" and the interesting pseudo-suicide got in, and away they drove, and the midnight sensation was over. Not having seen this mention of a too frequent New York ferry romance in any of the newspapers, I thought myself at liberty to mention it here.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

The Bohemian Girl" by the Parepa-Ross Balfe's Bohemian Girl is a very pleasant contrast to his Puritan's Daughter. It has all the elements of popularity that the other lanks, and often as it has been sung, it is tolerably certain to draw a good house, if anything will. The performance last evening introduced a new tenor, Mr. Nordblom, in the role of "Thaddeus." This gentleman has a good, firm tenor voice, a little defective in the low notes, but clear and sweet in the middle and upper register. His method is not of the best, but he sings with expression, and his execution of the airs, "Tis Sad to Leave One's Fatherland," "Then You'll Remember Me," and "Fair Land of Poland" were cordially applauded. Miss Rose Hersee appeared as "Arline," and more than confirmed the favorable impression made on her first appearance. This little lady is so attractive in her personal appearance, her vol e is so sweet, well trained, and she is so evidently, pired by ar tistic enthusiasm, that she will cert nly become a popular favorite, and as the representa ve of juvenile heroines of the opera she will make an admirable assistant to Madame Rosa. Miss Fanny Stockton gave a much better personation of the "Gipsy Queen" than we are commonly accustomed to. This is a difficult and rather ungracious role, and it is very seldom that a singer of even ordinary ability undertakes it. Mr. De Solla did the part of "Florestan" acceptably, and Mr. Campbell as "Count Arnheim," and Mr. Seguin as "Devilshoof" were excellent, as DHUHL,

The opera was handsomely put upon the stage, and the fair scene in the second act, with its batters and other accessories, was highly creditable to the taste and enterprise of the management,

Martha is annonneed for Monday.

At the Chesnut Our American Consin has been withdrawn after a successful run of a week, and this evening Tom Taylor and Charles Reade's beautiful comedy of Masks and Faces will be performed, with Miss Keene as "Peg Worlington." This play is not only of a very high order of merit of itself, but it presents an admirable array of acting characters, that will serve to bring out the full strength of a capable company like that of the Chesnut, Masks and Faces well deserves to be much better known than it is, for it is really one of the freshest, brightest, and most pleasing works of the modern stage. A first-rate actress only can do justice to the role of "Peg Woffington." and when a first-rate actress attempts it, lovers of fine dramatic art can assure themselves of a treat. The part is admirably suited to Miss Keene's brilliant and elegant style of acting; and with Mr. Sheridan as "Triplet" and Miss Howard as "Mabel Vane," a first-class entertainment may be expected this evening.

Robertaon's comedy of Home will be produced on may be expected this evening.

Robertson's comedy of Home will be produced on Monday. There is no dramatic writer of the present day who is better deserving of the popularity he has attained than Robertson. His pieces are always pure in tone and elegant in style, and they are admirably suited to such a theaire and such a company

AT THE WALNUT Mr. Booth will appear this even-AT THE WAINUT Mr. Booth will appear this evening as "Othello." Mr. Booth is very line in this role, and as a contrast to his "lago," it should be seen by all admirers of first-rate tragic acting.

There will be a matinee to-morrow, when Mr. Booth will appear as "Claude Melnotte" in Bulwer's drama of The Lady of Lyons, and in the evening Shakespeare's tragedy of Richard III will be performed.

On Monday Macbeth will be given.
At the Arch, Formosa is announced for this even-ING. AT THE ELEVENTH STREET OPERA HOUSE, mirth AT THE ELEVENTH STREET OFREA HOUSE, mirth and melody will combine this evening to entertain the patrons of minstrelsy. An attractive programme will be presented, which will contain a great number of amusing features.

The Great European Circus is now in the full tide of success on Eighth street between Race and Vine, crowded addiences being in attendance every afternoon and evening. The performances are up to a high mark of excellence and they are well worth viewing. The parade through the streets this morn-ing, with the live lion, the drove of dromedaries, the splendid horses and the brilliant dresses of the riders, attracted much attention along the entire Oute,

THE "STAR" course of lectures, under the management of Mr. T. B. Pugh, is attracting more attention in the best society of Philadelphia than any enterprise of the kind that has ever been brought to the notice of the public. Mr. Pugh presents an array of lecturing talent that cannot be equalled, and the subscription tickets for the course will undoubtedly be rapidly taken up. The whole course will consist of twenty lectures, in two series of ten each, which will extend through the greater part of the fall and winter. The scale of prices is remarkably low, considering the attraction; is cured tickets for the series of ten lectures being $5; single admission, 59 cents; admission with re-served seat, 75 cents. Tickets can be had at Gould's, No. 923 Chesnut street, on Monday, October 11. The opening lecture will be delivered by Miss Anna Dickinson, on Tuesday, Oct. 19. Subject, "Whited Sepulchres."

THE MOST EXTENSIVE DRY GOODS ESTABLISHMENT IN the northern part of our business centre is that of Curwen Stoddart & Bro., at Nos. 450, 452, and 454 North Second street. Here every thing in the dry goods line is to be obtained, and owing to the cheapness of their location the various articles are to be procured at the lowest prices possible. THERE IS GOOD AUTHORITY for stating that in this ountry one adult out of every six dies of Consumption ; and, indeed, so prevalent and so fatal has this disease become, that it is dreaded as the great scourge of the race; and yet, in the formative stages, all Pulmonary Complaints may be readily controlled by resorting compily to the EXPECTORANT OF DR. D. JAYNE, which pother and strengthens the bronchial tubes, allaying inflammation and eleansing them and the lungs of all impurities. It is a certain remedy for Coughs and Colds, which, when left to themselves, frequently bring on Pulnonary Complaints; and it cures Bronchitis effectually if taken in time, and the directions strictly followed. It has maintained its reputation as a curative for over a quarter of a century; and if those who are threatened with Lung Diseases, or any of the symptoms of Bronchitis or Asthma will at once give this standard remedy a trial, they will never regret it. THE EXHAUSTED SYSTEM. Summer is a debilitating scason, and the sudden change of temperature which takes place at this period of the year finds the healthiest of us considerably enervated by the preceding heat, and the weakly and delicate almost prostrated. This is not a favorable condition in which to encounter the raw cold winds of October and its chilling fogs and night dews, and consequently intermittent fever, dysentery, bilious attacks, and rheumatism are more or less prevalent everywhere, but especially in localities where the atmosphere is naturally unwholesome. In order to avoid the dangers arising from these causes, the exhausted system should now be renovated and invigorated by a course of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. This purest and most potent of all vegetable tonics and exhibarants regulates the secretions while it renews the strength, and purifies the fluids of the body while it gives firmness and vigor to the nervous organization. Free from the unpleasant flavor which renders the ordinary tonics so repulsive, com posed of extracts and juices of the choicest vegetable invigorants and correctives, mingled with a diffusive stimulant from which every noxious element has been expelled, this renowned preparation is, in all respects, the very best medicine of its kind that the world has ever known. Such is the opinion of distinguished members of the medical profession, and the general verdict of the public, after an experience of twenty years, during which HOSTETTER'S BITTERS has attained a greater popularity and a more extensive sale than any specific ever advertised in the cylumns of the American press.

CHARLES W. Jay, the able and brilliant editor of the "Union Sentinel," a leading Republican journal at Treuton, speaks thus of the Republican fight spring the con, speaks thus of the Republican fight assinst the Ring:

Scovel.—We give to our staders the brief speech of Scovel at Merchantaville, because it is a good speech, and appropriate to the difficulty that threatens to swamp the Republican editors feel that Scovel & And then the man has not a fair chance against his encourses. Nearly all of our Republican editors feel that Scovel & at least right in his present attitude, and the wrong he is probing is cating at the vitals of the party. But unfortunately few of them have the moral courage to grapple with the wealth and position occupied by the handful of conspirators. And then 'holicy,' and the 'harmony of the party,' restrain in them the exposure so loudly demanded by sound policy and lasting barmony. The Jersey City Eccang Journal and the South Jersey Republican have presented a manly front on this question, and if any other of our papers have shown like fidelity to the right, we have courseleded the oridence. Honesty, gentlemen, wins more than subserviency in the long run.

We are not the special champion of Scovel. But we love that good old English rule of "fair play," and when we see a whole flock of turkey gobblers pitchiner into one game cock, our sympathics are with the rooster. The wang who are after Jim are as selish and corrupt as whereour politicians can be and go in for Number One, Seet, last, and all the time: Scovel has shown more zeal, and and the time: Scovel has shown more zeal, and more survicing effort in the cause of Republican principles, than all of his assailants combined. He may have fought individuals, ambitious beyond their merits, but he has never proved lacking in devotion to the enunciations of a Republican National Convention. What he has done we have done, and will do again, when occasion domands learliess independence in behalf of the purity of the party. To expose intrigue, even to the defeat of an important nominee, is the duty of every honest member of a political organization. To yield to the cry of "regular nominations" is to Of Bottle, the opposing candidate the Scatter's says:
"But if Bettle is tarred with 'the Ring' stick he should be soused under without Republican mercy."
